

INDEX TO LOCATION IDENTIFIERS (LI)

The Location Identifiers (LIs) used in this book are the International Transport Association (IATA) three-letter LIs for the United States, United States Possessions, Canada, and other Foreign Countries worldwide. An LI represents the name/location of an airport/airbase. They are considered permanent (changes are made for air safety only) and cannot be transferred. The original LI remains in effect even if it becomes necessary to change the name of a given facility. Note: To conserve space only ICAO/IATA codes for stations in this book have been listed.

The International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) has established an international indicator which is a four-letter code used in international aviation and telecommunications. The ICAO/LIs listed below are primarily used to identify military stations/locations around the world. NOTE: In some cases, no IATA code has been assigned to a location and only the ICAO code is provided.

Use this table to identify the four-letter ICAO Code or installation/airport name if you only know the three-letter IATA Location Identifier.
